If scripture doesn't tell the truth about history, science, and the observable world, then it can't be trusted when it comes to morality and the unseen spiritual world; who came up with that idea? Many secular people today claim that you shouldn't believe anything unless the evidence supports it; who taught that idea in the ancient past? The answer to both questions may shock you: Jesus of Nazareth. In "Another Inconvenient Truth: What Secular America Hates", you will learn the inconvenient truths of abortion, homosexuality, atheism, evolution, the American Christian Church, and the founding principles of the United States of America. You will then learn the inconvenient truth about the historical Jesus before learning the highly inconvenient truth about the end times and when the rapture will occur. Each chapter will introduce you to the world of Christian apologetics while giving you ammunition for the spiritual warfare that is becoming more and more frequent in America society. Jesus was the ultimate intellectual, and his true followers need to become more like him in that regard if they are going to reach people in this lost age.
