Remember that Home Health Aides must have 12 hours of in-service training every year. LESSON OBJECTIVES Upon completion of this program, the home health aide will be able to: Name two common types of knee surgery List three reasons a patient might require knee surgery Name three components of the knee joint, and List two observations the aide should report to the supervisor. OVERVIEW In the United States, the single most common reason for visiting orthopedic surgeons is because of a knee problem. It is not surprising that more joint replacement surgeries are performed on the knee than on any other joint. Surgery on the knee is a complex procedure usually followed by a prolonged rehabilitation period. Many patients require home health services following surgery and often need home health aides to assist with activities of daily living (ADLs) in the recovery period. The purpose of this in-service is to provide information about knee surgery.
